<td>In this course, we will critically interrogate how the modern world is constructed through the technologies of patriarchy, settler colonialism, racism, violence, and capitalist resource exploitation. We will focus on the ways in which the intersectionality of gender with race, sexuality, and class has worked to organize the modern colonial world and new (old?) patterns of globalization. Using transnational feminist theory, postcolonial theory, and indigenous studies, the course will destabilize the “post” of postcolonialism, question what is both new and old about globalization, and unmask the function of power as it traverses different kinds of borders. Throughout, we will keep a keen eye on the role of gender in shaping modern social projects, and the very real material implications of gender for communities and individuals alike.</td>
